have three-dot sights, European combat grips, quick mag release and either nickel, chrome or black-finish options.

Colt, which has announced the discontinuance of the All-American 2000, is bered in .357 Maximum. Sporting an eight-inch barrel, the gun hefts less than four pounds, has a 2½-pound creep-free single-action pull (via a factory action job) and Hogue rubber grips.

Taurus will have an eight-shot .45 ACP version of its DA Model 908 9mm, called the P-945. Also, all Taurus .44 Magnum revolvers will now be compensated, and later in the year, we expect to see the P-52—a polymer-frame .22 LR auto plinker.

It seems like AMT comes out with magnum autos faster than we can keep track of them. The company's latest effort is a behemoth stainless five-shooter in .50 Action Express.

The "fast action" auto pistol by Daewoo is now offered in a 12+1-round-capacity .40 S&W. Called the DH 40, the gun has been built up slightly to handle the hotter load. It's available from Nationwide Sports Distributors.

Double derringers have been hot items for a century or so, and Sundance Industries' Point Blank Derringer is the latest of the lot. The .22 RF O/U is double-action and breaks open by means of a top latch. The hammer is concealed, and the gun is set up with an automatic barrel selector. Overall length is 4¾ inches.

picking up the slack with the new Cadet auto. Reminiscent of the classic Woodsman, this stainless polymer-frame .22 LR has a ribbed 4½-inch bull barrel, black rubber grips and an 11-round magazine.

Davis, well known for its budget-price derringer line is adding a .32 H&R Magnum over/under to its repertoire. It will be similar in looks and heft to the firm's current .38 Special gun.

Interarms/Star is listing a new double-action-only 9mm auto with a polymer frame that is touted as being a tad bigger than the current Firestar. Rossi, which is also imported by Interarms, has announced a .22 and .22 Magnum six-shot DA revolver.

The new .357 Super Ram silhouette revolver by Wesson Firearms Co. is a handsome stainless DA wheelgun cham-

Custom Shop will be producing a pistol in .356 TSW. This hot auto is designed for IPSC Major and will be initially distributed by Lew Horton.

Emerging Technologies, Inc., the home of Laseraim, is coming out with a pair of low-cost stainless autos. The Series I has a dual-port compensated barrel and vented slide, a ramped and accurized barrel bushing and more. It comes in .45 ACP and 10mm chamberings. The Series III Laseraim also has a ported barrel and slide, comes in .45 ACP and 10mm and has the accurized barrel bushing. Both guns sport fixed sights but are available with more exotic building .45 autos for some time, its compact and large-frame 13-shooters, offered by SGS Importers, Int., are unlike anything it has manufactured in the past. The staggered-mag guns come in blue matte finish and have three-dot sights and rubber grips, among other niceties.

Magnum Research is announcing the debut of a new version of its Lone Eagle single-shot pistol. Actually, it is a
